Have you heard about?

Parents are being urged to check their children's Tommie Tippee cups for mould.

We will be checking all of the children's cups who use this product and would like to advise parents to bring in a different cup to nursery for your child to use.

Company Tommee Tippee, which expressed its sincere apologies, has now released a statement announcing it is creating a new cup with a different valve which is easier to clean.

A see-through valve has also been produced so parents can see if it is clean.

A spokesman for Tommee Tippee said: "Child health and wellbeing is at the heart of everything we do, and we're taking the current concerns around our Sippee cups very seriously.

"We've sold millions of Sippee cups globally and continue to receive great feedback, but we know from recent social media posts, that some people have had problems cleaning the valve.

"For this we sincerely apologise.

"We want everyone to be happy with our products and we always want to exceed expectations.

"We've therefore listened to our customers, and will be launching a new Sippee cup in the next few months.

"The new cup will have a two piece valve that can be used with different types of liquid, and is easier to clean."
